WHO DO YOU SAY THAT I AM?"

When Jesus inquires concerning the opinion of people in general, he refers to himself obliquely as the Son of man, but when he asks his disciples the question, what he says is, who do YOU say that I am?...As the focus shifts from people in general to the apostles themselves, Jesus' manner of referring to himself likewise shifts from a third person objective title to the first person intimate pronoun. It is as if he were saying: "I can understand it if people out there, outside of my circle of familiarity, are mistaken in how they view me. But you who have lived with me day by day now for so long a while, you who have heard me pray and teach and sat with me at table and witnessed my miracles and been with me on storms of the lake and the persecution of the Pharisees: Who do YOU say that I am?"...

To the happy (and indifferent) eclecticism of "John the Baptist, Elijah, Jeremiah, or one of the prophets," Jesus reacts by saying to those sitting by him: "But you, my dear friends: you who know the contour of my face and the sound of my voice and the smell of my skin and hair....Could YOU pick me out in the confusion of a dark room full of prophets as your (and God's!) one and only Beloved? Am I present to you as the total person that I am? It is, after all, to reveal the Father that I came, and you can know the Father only if you know who I AM!"

Erasmus Leiva-Merikakis, now known as Fr. Simeon, is a Trappist Monk.
